G2 AND LOCKTON ANNOUNCE SERVICES AGREEMENT

G2 Net-Zero LNG today announced that they have engaged Lockton Companies, the world’s largest privately-owned independent insurance brokerage, to facilitate G2’s insurance and risk management services.

G2 Net-Zero LNG, a venture of Chas Roemer Innovations, is a Louisiana-based company building the world's first liquefied natural gas export and industrial gas production complex promising net-zero carbon emissions from upstream to dockside by as early as 2027. Without burden of existing expensive infrastructure costs, and coupled with a burgeoning world energy market insisting on net-zero emissions by 2050, G2 stands to be one of the cleanest and most profitable LNG projects in the world by the late 2020's.

Lockton will act as G2’s insurance and risk management consultant and advisor with respect to the project.

“This is yet another advancement as we work toward bringing net-zero LNG to a world market that has an ever-growing demand for clean energy,” said Chas Roemer, Chairman of G2 Net-Zero LNG. “Lockton will play an important role in G2’s development.”

“We’re excited to be working with Lockton. They looked carefully at what G2 needed and tailored their services exactly. They take client success personally and their reputation for integrity is unparalleled,” said G2’s chief financial officer, Angele Davis.

“We are honored by G2 entrusting the Lockton team to partner in the future of Clean Energy here in Louisiana,” said Hardie Edgcombe, President of Lockton Louisiana. “This project will be a great win for the people of the Gulf South.”

“When looking for business partners, you want to work with people and projects that you believe in. We believe in the G2 team and that they are setting the new standards for the industry,” said Richard Woods, Lockton’s lead-consultant for the G2 project. “Our team is excited to begin collaborating with G2 and watching this project become a reality.”
